ACCOUNTING PROCEDURES COMPLY TO TAXATION

Governments concur, as tax reforms are expected in several jurisdictions to align domestic rules with the Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (BEPS) recommendations. In 2017, Survey respondents also expressed much more concern with BEPS than three years ago. It is widely accepted that BEPS will drive significant change in the global tax landscape as governments introduce new policies in line with global standards. Multinationals are finding themselves preparing for this impending change-whether by changing their business models or adapting their resources so they are able to comply with enhanced reporting requirements.

First Consulting vast experience in providing variety of tax services will ensure your company's accounting procedures comply with enhanced reporting requirements and tax regulations.

TAX - CUSTOMS COMPLIANCE, ADVISORY & DISPUTE

Faced with an uncertain global economic environment, countries in Asia Pacific are aggressively attempting to capture their share of tax revenue from crossborder activities. One of the primary mechanisms used for countries to attract foreign investment is to lower their corporate income tax rates. Perhaps influencing decisions to enter into and exit from certain jurisdictions, survey respondents identified corporate income tax as the most important taxation area for their business. Governments are also looking to maximize tax revenue from companies operating in their jurisdictions. In the larger jurisdictions, such as Australia, China, India, Japan, and including Indonesia most respondents agree that tax authorities' audits are rigorous; and many are witnessing a higher frequency of such audits. Tax disputes are likely to escalate further in the future, and audits are likely to intensify. Dispute resolution processes, however, can be lengthy in many jurisdictions including Indonesia.

First Consulting provides in-depth technical and practical knowledge, comprehensive understanding of business and industry system, the related intricacy of tax and regulatory affairs and relationships with tax authorities to achieve various tax compliance requirements. Relationships with tax authorities are also key to managing tax affairs and mitigating risks because tax dispute resolution in Indonesia may take a long process. Each of the tax dispute resolution steps needs to be manage properly and monitored closely to ensure the best possible outcomes.

ENTERPRISE RESOURCE PLANNING (ERP)

The most effective way to manage tax affairs and tax risks will be to implement a Tax Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) on analytics systems. Interestingly, since 2014, companies planned to manage tax affairs by implementing a tax-risk management system. There is a trend in companies searching for technology to support tax processes. Many companies are investigating how technology can enhance existing processes, specifically, how tax-specific data can be efficiently extracted from ERP systems. Systems can generate analytics, to which data should be included and what types of analytic reports are needed. We expect technology to play a more prominent role in the coming years in supporting tax processes as the kinds of insights that can be gained from tax data become clearer.

First Consulting comprehensive understanding of business and industry system, the related intricacy of tax and regulatory affairs and accounting procedures comply to tax regulations will help us to establish the most suitable ERP for your business and industry.

INTRODUCTION - TAX REGIMES IN INDONESIA

The complexity of Indonesia's tax regime appears to have stabilized, as compared with the results from 2014 when over half of the respondents believed the tax environment had become more complicated. Wide-ranging tax reform is on the horizon in Indonesia however as new tax laws are scheduled to be introduced in 2018 that will cover general taxation and administration, personal and corporate income tax, and VAT. Implementation of the reform is likely to be accompanied by an increase in the complexity of Indonesia's tax environment.

"Complexity" means the perceived level of difficulty in interpreting and understanding the tax law and rules in the relevant jurisdictions*. Given the complex, unpredictable and inconsistent tax environments that many respondents' companies are operating in, relationships with tax authorities are key to managing their tax affairs and mitigating risks.
